

DID YOU KNOW?

Consumers don't choose the best product.

They choose the most familiar one.

REAL CONSUMER INSIGHT

In supermarkets:

Consumers spend seconds deciding.

What drives choice?

THE MYTH

We assume consumers:

- Compare ingredients

- Evaluate price deeply

- Research before buying

But in Reality , Most FMCG purchases are low-involvement decisions.

Why This Matters

If consumer choice is fast, then brand memory matters more than product superiority.

This is why:

Consistency > constant innovation.

Strategic Implication

For FMCG brands, it is

Mental availability

Physical availability

When you win over these two aspects,
Brand can win any market.
